

ADHIL

(Looking at Rakesh)

So, you've got what you wanted right. plus its 5 more minutes until the hour gets over.

(The bell rings)

Adhil stepped into the room that didn't even try to impress.

The chairs mismatched, the fan creaked like it had stories to tell.

The dusty old projector which lived through many life experiences turned scenes was turning on.

(Adhil and his friends sat down on the chairs excitedly waiting for the new members)

People stormed in like its a shop that was selling GTA 6 on its release.

Chatters filled the room, Introductions of each people to one another.

But a girl in pink hoodie and black baggy amidst this group caught Adhil's eye.

(The sound of the guitar strings playing Perfect, by Ed Sheeran, flowed to the film club and then to Adhil's ears, quietly but clearly)

Cute eyes which listened more than lips did,

Innocent smile, expression that shift like light through a curtain,

With a classic messy bun to which men almost never fails to fall for, with a skin even sunlight seemed to wait on her shoulders.

Lips that were red like a cherry, She spoke like she knew the music, even when there wasn't any.

(The girl stood up in front of the group and introduced herself)

Hi, I'm Floria. This is my first year in this university. And this is my friend Meera.

Rakesh

(Rakesh whispered to Adhil)

Bro. You mentioned earlier right, about the moment you find your soulmate. i guess its happening for me now. Her friend Meera is so beautiful.

(there was no response from Adhil.)

(Adhil got lost in his own world trying to picture a life with Floria.)

(The song's lines beautifully conveyed what he had to say.)

(Rakesh snapped Adhil to reality.)

RAKESH

Did you pay attention to anything that i just said ?

ADHIL